14	Virtual instruction, however, teachers need to be more engaged with the students. Instruction should not be left to the parents. Most parents are not equipped or are not capable of exercising such a role. Logging in to video chat with students for a half hour is not enough.	7/13/2020 6:28 AM

37	If students and staff are screened each day before getting on busses and/or entering school, I would vote for alternating in school and virtual first. If it works well, then go to all in person.	7/10/2020 11:59 AM
38	My children NOR I will be forced to wear a mask.	7/10/2020 11:57 AM
39	I think In-person instruction is best, some of my observations of the challenges are: Class scheduling has become problematic now that the normal daily structure and cadence is disrupted. Many teachers are competing to schedule time during the week for lectures, reviews and test/quizzes and end up stomping on each other. Students barely attend scheduled remote lessons and expec the teacher is available 24 hours a day.	7/10/2020 11:42 AM
40	I think personally think whatever is safest. I want to be in the building like normal but if it doesn't work the same and people are scared then virtual is the best possibly until January or so.	7/10/2020 11:14 AM
41	I don't feel my children actually gained anything from virtual learning, however, my daughter is immunocompromised making inperson instruction during a pandemic terrifying.	7/10/2020 11:05 AM
42	Generally, in- person however, with children in other school districts, I need a plan that closely mirrors other area schools, so I can balance teaching, and caring for my own children.	7/10/2020 11:00 AM
43	Virtual for older students with opportunities for small group extra curricular after traditional school hours for socialization. Use the HS building to help spread out the elementary students. The younger ones need the basics. The older ones should have them. Restrict certain areas art studios, auditorium, gyms etc for use by HS groups after traditional hours.	7/10/2020 10:59 AM
44	I'm open to all as long as it aligns with my child's schedule as well which is the most difficult part.	7/10/2020 10:53 AM
45	I have no idea. Health and Safety tells me to click "virtual", however, what do I and everyone else do with our kids if learning is virtual? That tells me to click in-person. People could lose their jobs, forced to once again stay home with their kids. Doing virtual or blended must be a last resort, as it will throw most households into another tailspin, but if it's going to happen, the decision needs to be made SOON, so families have plenty of time to prepare. You can't tell us in August. It's got to be SOON.	7/10/2020 10:43 AM
46	In school instruction is ideal, but not if it means staff or students could potentially die from this virus. I don't see how schools can safely open. Social distancing is near impossible in our buildings.	7/10/2020 10:42 AM
47	Either all in-person or all virtual. Blended is definitely not feasible.	7/10/2020 10:39 AM
48	In person instruction backed by a well plan to satisfy the CDC guidlelines	7/10/2020 10:36 AM
49	My son needs his therapies. Yes may daughter too but barriers and masks and isolation are unacceptable!!	7/10/2020 10:27 AM

1	Stop engaging in politically motivated fear-mongering. CDC and American Academy of Pediatrics strongly recommend reopening schools in the fall. Keeping children at home isolates them, and increases the risk of depression and suicide. It also prevents teachers from noticing and reporting the physical and sexual abuse of children, abuse that is almost certainly more frequent for children unable to leave home.	7/29/2020 2:16 AM

My son needs verbal instruction, and the lack of such by the school forces me to be his teacher more than 80% of the time. I will be returning to work, therefore this will no longer be an option for us.	7/21/2020 8:40 AM

28	For elementary kids parents has to respond often for school assignments. They are not very used to typing and get some time frustrated when teacher gives google document assignment. Office work and teaching 2 elementary kids were challenging but that was safe at least. I felt, teacher could have taken online class everyday by google meet especially for Math and English where they are learning new concepts and logics. Teachers presence makes difference.	7/20/2020 10:24 PM
29	The students should have had zoom or google meets at the times they would normally have class. I didn't agree that teachers would just post assignments with little or now instruction.	7/20/2020 8:54 PM

57	I felt like my children missed out on a lot because they weren't physically in school. The assignments they received all seemed like a recap of what they had learned that year. Plus it was harder for them to concentrate. I believe that for online instruction they should have a live teacher explaining and showing the new material to them and then issuing the assignments based on that material.	7/16/2020 8:39 AM
58	Lack of a social environment. All the grandkids missed their school friends and the interplay between.	7/15/2020 10:08 PM
59	i found it very helpful when teachers posted videos explaining the lessons and activities but many teachers did not which made it harder because we had to learn on our own	7/15/2020 10:02 PM
60	Wished my child had more virtual learning with his teachers instead of reading instruction to complete the assignments	7/15/2020 9:50 PM
61	My childcare was not in public school	7/15/2020 8:02 PM
62	Too much to list. online learning was a disaster.	7/15/2020 7:48 PM
63	there are too many distractions at home for adequate learning to take place	7/15/2020 1:47 PM
64	I didn't have the sense that my kids have gained much growth academically and socially as would normally be expected with in-person/class system	7/15/2020 1:19 PM
65	Students should have to meet with their teachers at least 3 times a week for 10 - 20 minutes. It connects the class and teacher and it also allows for interaction about lessons or social activities	7/15/2020 10:51 AM
66	I think its important to make more of in effort to meet with the children via online in smaller groups verses the whole class and implement review of curriculum durring there google meets in additio. To checkinv in on them.	7/15/2020 9:47 AM
67	Not the schools fault, the children just need MORE..inperson, social, etc	7/14/2020 9:58 PM
68	Some of the teachers had zoom calls, and kept the children engaged. However others didn't have sufficient work, and the children finished it within minutes!	7/14/2020 1:39 PM
69	academic integrity is an issue, accountability and grading support lacked, technology challenges, student effort/participation	7/14/2020 1:22 PM

just the accumulation of knowledge. The American Academy of Pediatrics strongly recommends reopening schools in the fall. The group noted that keeping children at home isolates them, and increases the risk of depression and suicide. It also prevents teachers from noticing and reporting the physical and sexual abuse of children, abuse that is almost certainly more frequent for children unable to leave home. For children, the risks of staying locked at home are high. The risks from the Coronavirus are not. The virus is deadly to the very old, and those who are already sick. To children, and the vast majority of young and middle-aged adults, it poses virtually zero threat. For children, it's far less deadly than the flu. In fact, if lockdowns cause just a one percent increase in teenage suicides, that will be a higher death toll than all coronavirus deaths among high schoolers, nationwide. And in fact, we have reason to believe lockdowns boosted suicides far more than one percent. Nor are children a significant risk to spread the virus to others. A Swiss study found that among infected children, viral loads are low, making it very difficult for them to spread the disease. Other countries realize this. In Germany, in early May, four major medical associations all called for the immediate reopening of the country's schools and daycare centers. And they called for reopening without restrictions: No dividing children into small groups, no masks, no social distancing. In Australia, the country's deputy chief medical officer, Nick Coatsworth, published an open letter to the public in May making the same point. Quote: "COVID-19 is not the flu. Far fewer children are affected by COVID-19, and the number of transmissions from children to children and children to adults is far less. As an infectious diseases specialist, I have examined all of the available evidence from within Australia and around the world and, as it stands, it does not support avoiding classroom learning as a means to control COVID-19." Doctors around the world understand this. Sweden, Netherlands, Belarus, Turkmenistan never closed primary schools or daycares at all. Their coronavirus outbreak has been no worse than ours. Austria, Finland, Norway, and Singapore have all reopened schools. None have seen an explosion of cases linked to schools. In Denmark, schools have been open since late April. Masks were not required. But the number of infected children hasn't grown. It's steadily declined. This isn't opinion. It's actual science. There's an overwhelming amount of it. Coronavirus is not deadly to children. Sending them to school won't spread it. Keeping them home hurts children, and everybody else. Schools must open.

78	I think some type of live instruction from the teachers would have been beneficial	7/13/2020 5:25 PM
79	Lack of teacher / student development	7/13/2020 5:18 PM
80	TEACHERS WERE NOT TEACHING PROPERLY, THEY JUST GAVE ASSIGNMENTS INSTEAD OF INSTRUCTIONAL LIVE VIDEOS FOR TEACHING	7/13/2020 4:52 PM
81	Due to the age of my children, they not constant supervision for their personal and academic growth.	7/13/2020 4:45 PM
82	my 6th grader has an IEP for which he receives additional math and english support. His teachers are better qualified than I am.	7/13/2020 4:43 PM
83	Outside of Math, LAL, Science and Soc. Studies, other classes were almost non-existent. As those teachers really didn't engage with the students, at all. Classes like Health, Spanish and Art.	7/13/2020 3:54 PM
84	My child needs visual instruction and no video teaching was provided. This is something I would be ok with.	7/13/2020 3:16 PM
85	Lack of support for children with learning disabilities	7/13/2020 2:46 PM
86	Though somewhat satisfied, as a teacher it was difficult to cover the curriculum in only a half hour per day of instruction and student work combined when normally students have a 45 minute period plus time at home for homework. Alot of material had to be cut out which, in the short-term, would most likely be fine, but in the long-term could greatly and negatively impact student learning and preparation for future classes.	7/13/2020 2:26 PM
87	I didn't feel that my son learned anything new. so I feel that he is going to be behind for the next grade.	7/13/2020 2:19 PM

90	Daily few hours video conference should be utilized for classes k-4	7/13/2020 12:17 PM
91	Not enough actual teaching, more filler work which created strain on teachers and ennui in student	7/13/2020 11:53 AM
92	As a student with ASD, virtual/online instruction caused a fight or flight response that I was unable to self regulate. I need the structure and routine of in-person instruction without the limitations of a mask and social distancing.	7/13/2020 11:48 AM
93	Lack of on-board/live explanation, less in-person interaction, should avoid frequent email communications	7/13/2020 11:48 AM
94	I believe that improvements could be made to improve virtual learning experience to rival in-person instruction. I also believe my children benefit from the routine and structure of scheduled classes and direct interaction with their instructor during lessons.	7/13/2020 11:43 AM
95	Giving assignments is not just enough, kids need to be taught online	7/13/2020 11:15 AM
96	I felt that children in elementary and middle school werent given enough activities or work to do. They would do a worksheet online and submit and done for the day. I also believe that there should be more live virtual classes where the teachers are actually instructing them. Showing examples or working alongside them. Answering question they may have virtually.	7/13/2020 11:09 AM
97	Parent can't be a teacher! Also we learned that teachers are not on top of the students in online learning they just pass homework!	7/13/2020 9:58 AM
98	There wasn't any supervision from teacher. Lesser involvement of teacher. Perhaps more online presence of teacher would help a bit more. Like it is in a classroom	7/13/2020 9:10 AM
99	Lack of instructional assistance. Children are asked to teach themselves at the HS level	7/13/2020 8:19 AM
100	30 minutes a day connecting with students via video call is not enough. Very difficult as I then had to be one my child's teacher. If virtual will continue, it should truly be virtual instruction. Teachers can not just assign work and leave it up to the parents to teach the children. It should be a mutual effort.	7/13/2020 6:28 AM
101	Worries about child learning while we are at work.	7/13/2020 6:20 AM
102	Students were simply given homework and study material with very little learning. Teachers should use the technology.	7/13/2020 1:16 AM
103	Rather than teacher's just posting assignments to be completed, there should have been virtual classrooms daily where kids log into a webinar with video on for each class. This would allow the teacher to teach and provide interaction and discussion.	7/13/2020 12:25 AM
104	I did the best I could with little preparation and the whirlwind that happened. We all were doing our best. I feel going forward preparation is key.	7/13/2020 12:14 AM
105	Students needed live instruction utilizing google meets or zoom. Busy work was just assigned on google classroom and parents were responsible for teaching the material not just reinforcing as is normally done with homework.	7/12/2020 10:33 PM
106	System for taking daily attendance was inefficient and inconsistent between classes	7/12/2020 10:33 PM
107	Parents were overwhelmed	7/12/2020 10:20 PM
108	the school should have provided chrome books	7/12/2020 9:33 PM
109	Little effort from the teachers. Teachers need to be more engaging. It's overwhelming for an 8yr to log on in the morning with 15 different things to do. Online interactive teaching sessions should be had instead of posting youtube videos and website for the children to teach themselves	7/12/2020 9:20 PM

154	I was working. Hard to make my IEP child to even care about school	7/10/2020 9:59 PM
155	Not enough google chats especially the younger grades. 20 minutes once a week is not effective. That's not instruction. For the older ones, they taught themselves. With the exception of the math teacher who was always available the rest would have a google meet every so often for those who had questions. If live virtual instruction is not possible due to scheduling or any other reasons the teachers should record themselves giving the lesson and writing down notes the students can copy or print to follow the class. I understand that there are students that don't have technology or WiFi. The number of students with the problem is minimal compared to the number of students. Everyone else (the majority) is paying the price. My son gets speech and we didn't hear from her at all. Not even a phone call. There is absolutely no reason why they couldn't do a google chat. Another reason I was not so satisfied is because my younger one who started struggling in school mid year was getting intervention. That was nothing comparable done during distant learning. That's another service that is small group and yet they didn't meet. They met once and it was the biggest waste of time as all they did was say hello to each other and they just had a show and tell. I thought maybe that was just an ice breaker but they never met again. That is huge. My daughter fell behind and now the school is telling me it's best to retain her because of this. This is unreal!!! All my kids have ADHD, my youngest can't sit at the computer too long. Watching videos all day long is boring. She needs a teacher on the other end talking to her to keep her attention.	7/10/2020 9:22 PM

166	The virtual learning has done a huge disservice to my children's education. They have learned nothing and 1 of my sons didn't even truely pass but the teachers gave him good grades anyway. The teachers only care about how they will look for their review and get the next raise.The fact that they did not have to be on like a regular school day to give a visual learning experience is unacceptable! for it or as if all parents were even home and didn't have their own jobs to be at all day! I think its disgusting that this is the level of concern our teachers and school board has for our children's education while also diminishing these kids social skills!

178	A unified online instructional program that helps maintain consistency across the district. Teachers are most effective using their strategies in the classroom. If that can't happen, I feel an online curriculum should be provided so we can better prepare and be there virtually supporting our students with extras or supplementation. 182	The teachers did little no help at all. All I got was assignment after assignment and I learned a grand total of nothing at all. Teachers who didn't respond in time often lead to much issues with me personally. There was no real instructions with both me and my classmates left stranded to help each other and ourselves to understand the curriculum. This was horrible considering for certain classes this was totally impossible.	7/10/2020 4:38 PM

191	There needs to be a cap off of when teachers communicate with you. I would get messages at 10pm. If we are running it like a school day the teacher/student/parent correspondents should end at a certain time even if it's 5pm.	7/10/2020 3:01 PM

193	My kids being marked absent for daily classes when they submit their daily attendance on time. And not graded for home works done and submitted timely. Struggling to reach out to teachers to for correction. Difficulty getting teachers to respond to emails. This goes on ur child's academic record if not corrected.	7/10/2020 2:55 PM
194	Some teachers did not care about students. Simply they did not teach.	7/10/2020 2:55 PM
195	My sons teachers in fifth grade were very ill prepared. They gave five minute videos in the morning and that was it! I contacted the school principal numerous times to complain about how boring the instruction from the fifth grade teachers was. Many other schools were doing virtual classroom meetings and my son had in those three months of school maybe just five virtual classroom meetings. One of my sons teachers seemed may be embarrassed or not comfortable doing video learning. The other teachers would read a chapter book and that was it. It was terrible. Art teachers never came on and did anything. Gym teacher never came on and did anything. Spanish teacher never came on and did anything. The total amount of work that was given to my son lasted about 90 minutes a day. I had to supplement by buying work books from Barnes & Noble. KIDS NEED TO BE BACK IN SCHOOL. THERE ARE NO REPORTS KIDS GET THIS VIRUS. I'm sick of the laziness of Sayreville education. Lazy. They want to stay home. Kids need social interaction. Show us reports of children getting the virus cause I don't see it anywhere.	7/10/2020 2:44 PM

197	Teachers would post 3 different assignments everyday at different times	7/10/2020 2:40 PM
198	The level of instruction that the teachers can accomplish online is not comparable to in-person learning.	7/10/2020 2:40 PM
199	Kids complained there was limited communication with instructors, assignments were posted however there was no new learning. I believe virtual can work by utilizing Zoom or Team Meeting apps where teacher can actually teach and students can follow.	7/10/2020 2:34 PM
200	The teachers via recorded video should teach the lesson like they were in the classroom. I think the children would have a better learning experience rather than the kids reading an article and struggling to complete their assignments.	7/10/2020 2:19 PM
201	Lack of student engagement, widespread plagiarism	7/10/2020 2:16 PM
202	Lack of support with assignments that require multiple students in order to complete.	7/10/2020 2:16 PM
203	Many times videos that were uploaded as part of the curriculum were blocked by the student account's firewall, so we had to find the videos on another computer. That in itself was not a huge deal, but sometimes teachers (one in particular) would get testy about it and try to tell the kids it was something on their end. Also, I would see my child hit the "submit" button and the project/assignment would be recorded on the next page, only to have it go missing either later that day or the next, and then be marked late or undone. This also happened with the daily attendance sheet and there were two days where my child was marked "absent" when al the work was done and the sheet was filled out.	7/10/2020 2:15 PM

215	I think the teachers should have used some sort of video instruction so the children could at least feel as though they were being taught. My kids were just assigned work with practically NO interaction with the teacher. Very inefficient and disappointing.	7/10/2020 1:30 PM

237	Lack of support for struggling subjects for children that could have been better understood if Google meets or Zoom with the teacher to explain and provide more educational support. I am concerned that my child will struggle in the upcoming school year due to the lack of support for virtual learning.	7/10/2020 12:31 PM

239	Parents were doing the teaching instead of the teachers; teachers to student ratio time was inadequate	7/10/2020 12:27 PM
240	Simply handing out material and home work in most cases is not effective. The schools should employ web meeting tools to at least have face to face time with teachers and students for at least few hours a day.	7/10/2020 12:18 PM

245	Not enough communications with teachers and other kids in class. Not enough direct teaching by the teacher (could have used more meeting or video instructions.) Received only few minutes video of online resauce and kids are supposed to answer math questions by themselves are not possible. That leaves teaching job on parents.	7/10/2020 12:05 PM
246	Therapies need to be done IN PERSON for special needs children. Virtual learning does not work for therapy! The therapist were wonderful and it is NOT their fault. It is easier to engage a child when they are in the correct environment for the therapy	7/10/2020 12:04 PM
247	Inability to discern student work from parent work and a struggle with two parents working at home to also help with child's instruction	7/10/2020 12:04 PM
248	Virtual learning solely is not the answer in class and at home may be a better option where home learning can be reinforcement of what was learned in school, such as a sheet of homework for each subject in school. However as stated above I am very uncomfortable with social distancing and my child having to wear a mask all day in school. They are not used to wearing masks and tend to touch them and fidget with them which increases risks of germs spreading. Plus the anxiety alone of having to wear a mask all day I could not imagine the long lasting effects it will have on the children.	7/10/2020 12:03 PM

257	Kids did not do good with Virtual Learning at all. I worked so they had to go to daycare and they need extra help with online learning and did not get it at daycare. 260	lack of student participation during video conferences.	7/10/2020 11:43 AM
261	Another thing I've observed along these lines is tracking attendance, Since the normal schedules are not followed keeping track of attendance is a real challenge. Also when a teacher schedules a Google meet to go over work or teach a lesson many students don't join for many reasons. When assignments are due there are almost always students that don't submit and ask for extensions because of internet issues or some other reason including work load because they have been assigned so much work. I've observed this phenomena with my youngest who is sophomore. Since teachers are not on the normal schedule and don't meet daily they assign more work to compensate for the lack of in person instruction. Add on top of that every teacher is conducting their classes in different manors and approaches which is confusing and problematic. Lastly, the various IT challenges, Whether they are technology issues or competency related. Lot's of opportunity for lessons learned.	7/10/2020 11:42 AM

266	Kids are SUFFERING !!!!!!! The emotional and social development of kids is being totally disregarded. Kids need to be in a social environment with others to learn. My child is DEPRESSED!!!!!! I have done my best to do all the online teaching. This is not my job!!!!!! I have to do my own job to support this family. We pay astronomical amount in taxes that support the school system. We are only asking for what is due to us!!!!!!!!!!!!!! please get it together and develop a plan and get these kids back to school. Our future depends on these kids getting properly educated. Anything less is unacceptable!	7/10/2020 11:32 AM

268	I work full time so it is hard to manage online schooling for 2 elementary aged child. The teachers were wonderful but it was hard to manage with 2 ull time working parents	7/10/2020 11:25 AM
269	I would prefer that my child must be online while the teacher is teaching the in person class, that my child at home is on a google meet at the same time with the class and teacher. Too many distractions doing the classwork on their own virtually. This would assist also in the teacher not having to teach the same lesson 2x.	7/10/2020 11:24 AM
270	As a para in the preschool program it was nice that I got to do google meets with the students but other than that and all of the trainings we were required to do I feel the need for is to be back in the classroom	7/10/2020 11:22 AM

280	After the novelty wore off, many students were disengaged.	7/10/2020 11:11 AM
281	1. Inflexibility and unwillingness of some teachers to make exceptions for students to make second attempts at work that was clearly not understood based on extremely low grades; 2. some teachers giving enormously large assignments with students are left to do independently; 3. teachers making the assumption that students are able to learn the same content on their own (or with short videos) that they would be able to learn if they were being taught in the classroom	7/10/2020 11:10 AM
282	Expectations for parents and students were delayed, many felt they would have benefited from training on the Google Classroom platform so they could adequately assist their learner(s).	7/10/2020 11:10 AM
283	From a teacher point of view: students were not required to attend online google meet lessons and therefore many did not. Many students stopped turning in work completely and many students cheated on every assessment. 294	Administrative guidelines for what we were to give to the children were unclear and constantly changing for the first several months. By the end, we were presenting a water- down curriculum that rewarded students with exceptional grades for handing in anything, even if it was months late and below our standards. Complaining about the quality of instruction we were forced to deliver, or the lack of accountability our students were being held to, was used to paint staff members as irrational and uncaring by parents, administrators, and guidance counselors. Our standards and expectations of our students shouldn't go out the window because we had to alter instructional methods.	7/10/2020 11:00 AM
295	Lack of in-person social emotional peer interaction.	7/10/2020 11:00 AM
296	As a teacher of students with disabilities, it was extremely difficult to monitor their progress in an online platform. Holding my students to a higher standard was nearly impossible, as we were not able to accurately grade them, and these grades were not reflective of their online performance. Furthermore, upon speaking to my students, they overwhelmingly cited extreme stress and a desire to return to school. I am increasingly concerned for the mental health of my students, and believe we need to provide resources to help them cope with the past few months.	7/10/2020 10:58 AM

317	i just think there needs to be more face time with the teacher, at least a zoom meeting for a few hours everyday	7/10/2020 10:40 AM
318	As an only working parent, it is extremely difficult to attempt to homeschool two children. It appeared as if they had 4-5 hours of reading through materials, watching videos and then doing homework. That is not effective learning. There was barely 1 live zoom class a week. They need the critical courses such as math science english arts to be live, instructional taught classes, even if it virtual. None of that was provided The kids essentially taught themselves based on what they read and a few instructions and a short 2-3 minute video. This cannot be effective learning strategies. We have online resources to allow for live classes, I do not understand why those could not be provided for the most critical of subjects. If we are to do virtual or semi virtual in the fall, it must be priority to make critical courses live interactive and as close to real life as possible. This may be for the long haul, possible into the following school year. I hope this is taken into extreme consideration for the coming school year.	7/10/2020 10:40 AM

340	my children do not perform well with at home instruction. if left on their own to do the work, they take shortcuts like not watching the videos or reading the materials, and also do not tend to retain the lessons. While the lessons themselves are ok, i feel that without someone to physically TEACH them, and hold them accountable, other than their parents, they do not perform well. I have 2 children, 1 was a straight A student before at home instruction, and even she did not feel the drive to exceed while not in a physical classroom. My younger daughter, is not an exceptional student, and the at home instruction with no in person Mentor, severely impacted her drive to do her best. This is my issues with at home instruction. just having students watch a video to learn a lesson, does not TEACH them, does not engage them, does not help them interact and answer questions and hear others questions and the answers that go with them. At home instruction is not the best for my children.	7/10/2020 10:24 AM
